Last week, President Joe Biden's White House published a 73-page document produced by the Office of Science and Technology Policy titled Blueprint for an AI Bill of Rights: Making Automated Systems Work for the American People.

The White House says the blueprint "among the great challenges posed to democracy today is the use of technology, data, and automated systems in ways that threaten the rights of the American public." The Blueprint, then, is "a guide for a society that protects all people from these threats—and uses technologies in ways that reinforce our highest values."
